A. HOTELLING, CHURCH DEACON, CONFESSES MURDER

FLINT, MICH., STILL FLAMES WITH DANGEROUS INDIGNATION AGAINST MAN

MAN WAS ARRESTED AT HIS HOME IN OWOSSO, MICH., LATE YESTERDAY

By PHILIP N. O'HARA (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Flint, Mich., Jan. 17.—A frenzied city, defeated in desire for mob action against Adolph Hotelling, a church deacon who confessed he butchered Dorothy Schneider, 5' still flamed today with dangerous indignation against the slayer.

Hotelling was arrested at his home in Owosso, Mich., late yesterday. At first he denied he killed Dorothy, but later he made a full confession, police said.

Hotelling was spirited away from Flint and first reports were that he had been taken first to Lansing and then to the state reformatory at Ionia. Authorities denied he was at the reformatory, however. Every effort was being made to keep his whereabouts secret.

Despite efforts to keep Hotelling's whereabouts secret, the United Press learned definitely today that the confessed slayer was in the state reformatory at Ionia, where he arrived at 1:30 A. M.

Authorities refused to permit newsmen to see him.

Meanwhile, a mob surged about the jail here, out of control of deputies and hastily mobilized national guardsmen.

Police said Hotelling confessed to kidnapping Dorothy last Thursday, carrying her to a field nearby, and then hacking her to death.

Police attempted to disperse the crowd at the Flint jail with tear bombs, but the citizens tossed the bombs back into the jail as fast as the police hurled them.

Finally militiamen dispersed the gathering.

The authorities were not caught unprepared by the mob's attack. For days officers had sensed the temper of the crowd.

As the crowd attained threatening proportions, city, county and state police stood between the crowd and the jail.

The fact that the mob lacked a leader probably averted serious consequences. Individual groups opened hostilities by hurling bricks through the windows of the sheriff's office.

Roars of "Let's go" and "We'll get him" filled the air. Police stood firm. Without attempting retaliation, they pushed back the surging lines.

But they were hopelessly outnumbered. The mob grew.

Then police used tear gas bombs, placed in the jail for such an emergency.

An order went out, and wisps of smoke that grew into clouds rose from the ground. The mob at first hardly appreciated what was happening. As the acrid fumes reached their nostrils, however, they retreated and the huddled mass was broken. But only for a moment.

One officer threw a bomb from which he had not released the pin. The bomb fell harmless in the crowd and one quick-witted member picked it up and hurled it to the veranda outside the jail.

It was then the turn of the defenders to retire. Red-eyed they sought the rear of the building and purer air.

No sooner had they done so than a bullet crashed through a window, passing over the sheriff's desk but harming no one.

Plain clothes men in the crowd then arrested a dozen rioters, considered the ring leaders.

Mayor William McKeighan communicated with Governor Fred W. Green at Ionia, who authorized the calling out of the militia.

Some 75 men of the 119th field artillery were drilling in the local armory. They were hustled into were invited to go through the jail

PARABLE OF LIONS AND LAMBS FRIENDLY GAINS CREDENCE

Breckenridge, Mo., Jan. 17.—(U.P.)—The parable about lions fraternizing with lambs gained credence here after hunters rescued two hounds and a red fox from a 40-foot well where the animals fell during the chase. The dogs and the fox appeared on the best of terms when they were pulled out of the hole where they had been imprisoned three days, the dogs refusing to continue the chase.

marching order, served with ammunition and held in readiness.

Twelve members of the crowd and satisfy themselves that their quarry had been removed. That offer also was accepted, this time with better results.

The prelude to the unprecedented scene of mob violence was the arrest of Hotelling. He had been found in Owosso under circumstances that pointed to his guilt. Any possible doubt vanished when he broke down and confessed.

Oscar G. Olander, state police commissioner, lost no time. Barely had the county prosecutor, William R. Roberts, obtained a detailed statement from the man, when Sheriff Frank A. Green and his deputies cleared the office of all persons.

A few minutes later a limousine shot from the front entrance of the jail. It contained Hotelling, Prosecutor Roberts, Commissioner Olander and Police Chief Scavarda.

Doubt still remained today as to whether Hotelling had been arraigned before his departure.

His arrest came from information volunteered by a fellow officer of the Church of Christ in Owosso.

The latter was Harold Lottridge, a deacon of the church, who was ordained Sunday night. The same night, Hotelling was ordained elder. He had been a deacon for many years.

It was Hotelling who lit the small candle held in Lottridge's hand from the larger candle which he held, symbolic of the passing of the light of Christ from the greater to the smaller vessel.

"This morning when I woke up," Lottridge said, "I had Hotelling on my mind. I don't know why. But his image was there in sinister fashion and I could not get rid of it."

Lottridge told his boss on a school construction job at Flushing of his psychic reactions. During the conversation, he said, Deputy Sheriff Mark Pailthorpe approached and began to ask him the questions which led to the murderer's arrest.

Pailthorpe's version was different. He said he received a telephone call from Mount Morris — the village where the Schneiders live—at about the same time that Dorothy was lowered into the grave.

The call indicated Sheldon Robinson, a carpenter, had heard a fellow carpenter say he knew where he could lay his hands on the slayer, but that he had no intention of doing so until the reward of $3,000 had been raised to the level of the California Hickman reward of $100,000.

Pailthorpe rushed Robinson to Flushing and there they confronted Lottridge. The deputy made it clear that it would be to Lottridge's advantage to tell what he knew. Lottridge then said he knew a man in Owosso who answered the description of the Schneider slayer and who drove the same type of car.

Pailthorpe brought Robinson back to Mount Morris and, returning to the county jail, picked up Deputies Henry Munger and Thomas Kelly.

The three speeded to Owosso where they found Hotelling lounging in a morris chair. His wife, a demure little woman, and two of the younger children—there are five altogether—were talking with their father.

The deputy asked Hotelling to explain his movements Thursday, the day Schneider was kidnapped.

Hotelling said he was at home that day. His wife said he had been away looking for work.

The deputies told Mrs. Hotelling that they had reason to believe that

HICKMAN MURDER WAS TOPIC A OF A. HOTELLING

RELATIVES AND NEIGHBORS OF ACCUSED RELATE HIS CONFESSIONS

"HE WAS VIOLENT IN DENUNCIATION OF HICKMAN," SAID MRS. HOTELLING

By GRACE SEGER (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Owosso, Mich., Jan. 17.—William Edward Hickman's murder of Marion Parker in Los Angeles was one of the favorite topics of Adolph Hotelling, confessed slayer of Dorothy Schneider, until he transferred interest to the Michigan crime, relatives and neighbors of the accused man said today.

"He was violent in his denunciation of such a man," said his wife, Mrs. Ruby Hotelling, 42. She also said that when he returned from Flint Thursday evening, he told her of the Schneider crime and said he would like to shoot the guilty man.

Despite his interest in the slayings, however, Hotelling was known in his home town as an industrious carpenter and a devout churchman. Since a recent church election he has been an elder in the Owosso Church of Christ. For nine years he has been one of its most generous contributors and hardest workers.

"Sunday morning he knelt at our communion table and offered what I believe was his first prayer on an occasion," said the Rev. J. W. Frye. "He seemed not at all disturbed, nor did he show any emotion as I recall."

Neighbors said they never saw him punish a child. In fact, they regarded him as a model father. His chief interests, they said, were church work and carpentering.

The peaceful calm of life in Owosso was disturbed last night when threatening groups gathered in front of the Hotelling home and grew in size until dispersed by police.

Mrs. Hotelling gathered her children around her. There were five, the youngest, Patricia, four years old. She was adopted by the Hotellings when an infant.

The others were Vida, 12; Dezere, 16; Mrs. Freda Monroe, 20, and Mrs. Joseph Wagner, 24. Both the married daughters live in Owosso and they went to their mother in her grief.

"If he did it, something in his brain snapped," sobbed Mrs. Hotelling.

her husband was the little girl's assailant. She laughed.

"Nonsense," she said. "If I thought he was, I'd turn him in myself."

Little by little the deputies built up their case and Hotelling confessed.

"I did it," he cried. "I don't know what made me do it." The officers hustled him in a solitary cell in an upper tier. On the lower tier were several prisoners who had spent four nights speculating on what they might do if Dorothy's murderer became one of their fellows.

A few moments later Sheriff Green returned to question Hotelling further. He found Hotelling scraping at his throat with a rusty nail. The injuries were not serious.

The sheriff brought Hotelling downstairs to his office. It was decided to remove him immediately. A mob already was milling outside the jail. There were reports that a massed column was approaching from an industrial section of the city.

Hotelling was hustled away, but the mob remained to riot.

Owosso, Mich., Jan. 17.—W. A. Fleetmiller, Owosso attorney, left today for Ionia to act as attorney for Adolph Hotelling, confessed murderer of Dorothy Schneider of Mt. Morris. Fleetmiller said he had no plan of action as yet.

7 FIRES KEEP COMPANIES ON DEAD RUN

CITY FORCE ASSISTED BY DEPARTMENTS FROM BALTIMORE AND OTHER CITIES

FORMER PSYCHOPATHIC PATIENT IS SUSPECTED AS FIREBUG

Washington, Jan. 17.—(U.P.)—Seven fires charged to a pyromaniac terrorized the national capitol from midnight to dawn today.

All the city's fire-fighters, assisted by nearly a score of companies from Baltimore and nearby Maryland and Virginia cities, succeeded in subduing the blazes and an alert citizen who reported one fire gave information which resulted in the arrest of a world war veteran, a former psychopathic patient, as a suspected firebug.

The suspect, John J. Fischer, 29, former patient at Walter Reed army hospital here, admitted attending three of the fires, but denied he caused them. He is a married man and drawing disability compensation from the government.

Fischer was arrested when he drove to his home at 7:10 A. M. today. In his car was found a fireman's badge from Fallsburg, N. Y. His arrest was caused by Timothy Daly, who sounded one fire alarm and later asked a man at the scene what he was doing. The man drove away, and Daly took the automobile license number and reported it to police. Police reached Fischer's home before he returned.

Twenty-five firemen overcome by smoke and flame in fighting two downtown fires were under treatment at hospitals, where their condition was believed not serious. Explosion of a gas main in a burning five-and-ten cent store on Pennsylvania Avenue downtown caused most of the casualties. Scores of others treated on the scenes returned to their posts.

Three false alarms, all from the downtown section, preceded the outbreak of fire. The blazes attacked a group of produce stores, a hay company, a lumber yard and residences. Firemen believed all were incendiary.

Several hundred thousand dollars damage was believed to have been done by the fires.

HOLD SLIM IOWA GIRL FOR MURDER

SILKEN FINERIES OF BETTY CHAMBERS HAD CHARM FOR MARION KIRK

MARION AND BETTY OF CHICAGO WERE FRIENDS UNTIL A WEEK AGO

Chicago, Jan. 17.—(U.P.)—The silken fineries amid which Betty Chambers was found strangled to death last week had charm also for Marion Kirk, a slim Iowa girl, and today Marion was held for Betty's murder.

Marion and Betty were good friends—until a week ago, when they parted. Marion said she never saw Betty alive again, but police believed she saw her once more—when she wound yards of adhesive tape around Betty's mouth. The tape, a blow on the head and an electric light cord around Betty's neck combined to kill her.

Marion's finger prints were found on the tape, police said; they were also found on other objects in the room.

Since she left Iowa, Marion has been a manicurist, chorus girl, actress, organist and showgirl, police said. She liked the fineries of life and got them.

Marion was arrested with James Kirk, an admitted pickpocket, who she said was her husband. Her alibi in the Chambers murder was that she and Kirk had smoked opium on the day of the murder and had slept until 4 P. M.

As they were taken to separate cells, Kirk whispered to Marion, "Tell the truth, kid, and keep out of the electric chair."

Another suspect, Al Bregar, was arrested in connection with Betty Chambers' death, but police doubted his guilt.

HAD TWO DAY GOOD WILL VISIT AT HAVANA, CUBA

HONORED WHILE ATTENDING THE PAN-AMERICAN PARLEY

URGED HEARTY CO-OPERATION OF THE AMERICAN STATES

By CARL D. GROAT (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Aboard U. S. Cruiser Memphis at Sea, (by radio via Key West to United Press) Jan. 17.—Returning in triumph from his two-day good will visit to the Pan-American conference, President Coolidge sailed from Havana for Key West on the cruiser Memphis at 7:45 A. M. today.

President Machado of Cuba bade farewell to President Coolidge and his party as they boarded the cruiser Memphis.

President Machado of Cuba and Mrs. Machado accompanied the American president and Mrs. Coolidge to the dock as the bright sub-tropical sun was rising. Workmen along the street paused to wave and cheer as the procession of motor cars moved toward the water front.

Foreign Minister Ortiz accompanied the presidential party aboard the Memphis.

President and Mrs. Machado walked from the dock as the Memphis steamed out and farewell presidential salutes were exchanged by the guns of the cruiser and the Cuban batteries ashore.

The Memphis cleared the harbor at 8:45 on its 90-mile cruise to Key West, where the president was to board his special train for Washington.

The battleship Texas, aboard which President Coolidge made the trip to Havana, cleared Havana harbor half an hour behind the Memphis.

COOLIDGE PLEASSED BY FRIENDSHIP SHOWN

By LOUIS J. HEATH (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Havana, Jan. 17.—Buoyed up by the great outburst of friendship shown President Coolidge, both in his visit to Havana and in his address urging co-operation of the American states, delegates to the sixth Pan-American conference today started the business sessions.

At 11 A. M., presidents of all the delegations here will meet at the University of Havana to draft committee slates and decide the number of committees necessary to handle the work of the conference.

There was little indication today that the official agenda would be departed from. The agenda is purely non-political and the opening of the conference started yesterday without a reference to any of the political disputes now confronting various of the American states.

Neither President Coolidge nor President Machado brought up any of these issues, and it seemed unlikely the agenda would be altered to include the controversial subjects.

Leaders of delegations today were tremendously pleased at the friendliness exhibited at the first session yesterday and the manner in which the speeches of President Coolidge and President Machado were accepted.

Charles Evans Hughes, former secretary of state in the United States and chief of the United States delegation, was enthused over the prospects for the conference.

Havana, Jan. 17.—Open diplomacy will rule at the sixth Pan-American conference, under a decision reached today at meeting of chiefs of 21 delegations.

Upon motion of Honorio Puerrydon, Argentine ambassador to the United States, seconded by Charles Evans Hughes, the chiefs voted 16 to 5 in favor of open sessions both for committee and plenary meetings.

7 FIRES KEEP COMPANIES ON DEAD RUN

CITY FORCE ASSISTED BY DEPARTMENTS FROM BALTIMORE AND OTHER CITIES

FORMER PSYCHOPATHIC PATIENT IS SUSPECTED AS FIREBUG

Washington, Jan. 17.—(U.P.)—Seven fires charged to a pyromaniac terrorized the national capitol from midnight to dawn today.

All the city's fire-fighters, assisted by nearly a score of companies from Baltimore and nearby Maryland and Virginia cities, succeeded in subduing the blazes and an alert citizen who reported one fire gave information which resulted in the arrest of a world war veteran, a former psychopathic patient, as a suspected firebug.

The suspect, John J. Fischer, 29, former patient at Walter Reed army hospital here, admitted attending three of the fires, but denied he caused them. He is a married man and drawing disability compensation from the government.

Fischer was arrested when he drove to his home at 7:10 A. M. today. In his car was found a fireman's badge from Fallsburg, N. Y. His arrest was caused by Timothy Daly, who sounded one fire alarm and later asked a man at the scene what he was doing. The man drove away, and Daly took the automobile license number and reported it to police. Police reached Fischer's home before he returned.

Twenty-five firemen overcome by smoke and flame in fighting two downtown fires were under treatment at hospitals, where their condition was believed not serious. Explosion of a gas main in a burning five-and-ten-cent store on Pennsylvania Avenue downtown caused most of the casualties. Scores of others treated on the scenes returned to their posts.

Three false alarms, all from the downtown section, preceded the outbreak of fire. The blazes attacked a group of produce stores, a hay company, a lumber yard and residences. Firemen believed all were incendiary.

Twenty-five alarms in all were sounded. Several hundred thousand dollars damage was believed to have been done by the fires.

HOLD SLIM IOWA GIRL FOR MURDER

SILKEN FINERIES OF BETTY CHAMBERS HAD CHARM FOR MARION KIRK

MARION AND BETTY OF CHICAGO WERE FRIENDS UNTIL A WEEK AGO

Chicago, Jan. 17.—(U.P.)—The silken fineries amid which Betty Chambers was found strangled to death last week had charm also for Marion Kirk, a slim Iowa girl, and today Marion was held for Betty's murder.

Marion and Betty were good friends—until a week ago, when they parted. Marion said she never saw Betty alive again, but police believed she saw her once more—when she wound yards of adhesive tape around Betty's mouth. The tape, a blow on the head and an electric light cord around Betty's neck combined to kill her.

Marion's finger prints were found on the tape, police said; they were also found on other objects in the room.

Since she left Iowa, Marion has been a manicurist, chorus girl, actress, organist and shoplifter, police said. She liked the fineries of life and got them.

Marion was arrested with James Kirk, an admitted pickpocket, who she said was her husband. Her alibi in the Chambers murder was that she and Kirk had smoked opium on the day of the murder and had slept until 4 P. M.

As they were taken to separate cells, Kirk whispered to Marion, "Tell the truth, kid, and keep out of the electric chair."

Another suspect, Al Bregar, was arrested in connection with Betty Chambers' death, but police doubted his guilt.

HAD TWO DAY GOOD WILL VISIT AT HAVANA, CUBA

HONORED WHILE ATTENDING THE PAN-AMERICAN PARLEY

URGED HEARTY CO-OPERATION OF THE AMERICAN STATES

By CARL D. GROAT (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Aboard U. S. Cruiser Memphis at Sea, (by radio via Key West to United Press) Jan. 17.—Returning in triumph from his two-day good will visit to the Pan-American conference, President Coolidge sailed from Havana for Key West on the cruiser Memphis at 7:45 A. M. today.

President Machado of Cuba bade farewell to President Coolidge and his party as they boarded the cruiser Memphis.

President Machado of Cuba and Mrs. Machado accompanied the American president and Mrs. Coolidge to the dock as the bright sub-tropical sun was rising. Workmen along the street paused to wave and cheer as the procession of motor cars moved toward the water front.

Foreign Minister Ortiz accompanied the presidential party aboard the Memphis.

President and Mrs. Machado walked from the dock as the Memphis steamed out and farewell presidential salutes were exchanged by the guns of the cruiser and the Cuban batteries ashore.

The Memphis cleared the harbor at 8:45 on its 90-mile cruise to Key West, where the president was to board his special train for Washington.

The battleship Texas, aboard which President Coolidge made the trip to Havana, cleared Havana harbor half an hour behind the Memphis.

COOLIDGE PLEASSED BY FRIENDSHIP SHOWN

By LOUIS J. HEATH (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Havana, Jan. 17.—Buoyed up by the great outburst of friendship shown President Coolidge, both in his visit to Havana and in his address urging co-operation of the American states, delegates to the sixth Pan-American conference today started the business sessions.

At 11 A. M., presidents of all the delegations here will meet at the University of Havana to draft committee states and decide the number of committees necessary to handle the work of the conference.

There was little indication today that the official agenda would be departed from. The agenda is purely non-political and the opening of the conference started yesterday without a reference to any of the political disputes now confronting various of the American states.

Neither President Coolidge nor President Machado brought up any of these issues, and it seemed unlikely the agenda would be altered to include the controversial subjects.

Leaders of delegations today were tremendously pleased at the friendliness exhibited at the first session yesterday and the manner in which the speeches of President Coolidge and President Machado were accepted.

Charles Evans Hughes, former secretary of state in the United States and chief of the United States delegation, was enthused over the prospects for the conference.

Havana, Jan. 17.—Open diplomacy will rule at the sixth Pan-American conference, under a decision reached today at meeting of chiefs of 21 delegations.

Upon motion of Honorio Puerrydon, Argentine ambassador to the United States, seconded by Charles Evans Hughes, the chiefs voted 16 to 5 in favor of open sessions both for committee and plenary meetings.

UNIVERSAL PRAISE ACCORDED SOPRANO

Miss Elizabeth Kerr Will Appear Next Sunday at 3:30 P. M.

AT NEW ELKS HALL

Brainerd Musical Club Sponsors Appearance of Noted Singer Here

Charming Miss Elizabeth Kerr, soprano, who will appear in Brainerd at the new Elks hall Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock under the auspices of the Brainerd Musical club has received the plaudits of America's most severe music critics.

Miss Kerr is gifted with a voice of natural flexibility, richness of tone, youth, personal charm and opulent tone. These qualities have brought her increasing success in opera and concert.

It is seldom that so remarkable a combination of voice, art and personality is encountered in so young an artist. She is an American girl with only American training and it is safe today that no other young artist has been so generally acclaimed.

She has been cast in performances with such renowned stars as Mary Garden, Marguerite D'Alvarez, Rosa Raisa, Edith Mason, Claudia Muzio, Tito Schipa, Chaliapin, Anseau and Baklanoff, and in every instance she has shared measurably in the great enthusiasm such ensemble creates.

The Chicago Evening American had the following to say of Miss Kerr's performance in the role of Micaela in Carmen:

"Elizabeth Kerr was a charming Micaela. The voice has youthful freshness, clearness and volume. She sings correctly and smoothly and in perfect tune. The duet with Jose (Fernand Anseau) has never received warmer applause, in fact it was the hit of the first act, and after her big aria in the smuggler's scene the audience's approval might almost be called an ovation."

Irene Williams, lyric dramatic soprano of the Philadelphia Civic Opera Company, will sing the title role of "Winona" in the opera of that name when it is given its Minnesota premiere in the new Minneapolis Auditorium Friday evening, January 27. The opera was written by Perry S. Williams of Minneapolis, and the score was composed by Alberto Bimboni, coach of many famous Metropolitan Opera stars, and director this winter of the Washington National Opera and Philadelphia Operatic society. Maestro Bimboni will personally direct the Minneapolis production. Also appearing in the opera will be Chief Caupolican, celebrated Indian baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York and the Philadelphia Grand Opera Company, together with Ernest Davis, tenor, of the Chicago Grand Opera company and the Boston Grand Opera company. Telling the story of Minnesota's most popular Indian legends, the opera "Winona" is known as "Minnesota's own grand opera" and there is a general statewide interest in its production in Minneapolis next week.

Canadian Forest Revenue

The direct revenue received by Dominion and provincial governments from the forest in the form of rentals, royalties, stumpage charges, etc., amounts to $15,000,000 annually. In Europe it has been found that increased expenditure on modern protective methods has always been followed by a much more than proportionate increase in revenues.—Natural Resources Bulletin.

Two of Earliest Books

What is believed to be the first book printed in England is William Caxton's "Recuyell of the Historye of Troye," published in 1474, a translation of Raoul de Fevre's work. However, Caxton's "Dietes and Notable Wise Sayings of the Philosophers," printed November 18, 1477, is the first book that can with certainty be maintained to have been printed in England.

Miss Elizabeth Kerr Will Appear
Next Sunday at 3:30 P. M.

AT NEW ELKS HALL

Brainerd Musical Club Sponsors
Appearance of Noted
Singer Here

Charming Miss Elizabeth Kerr, soprano, who will appear in Brainerd at the new Elks hall Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock under the auspices of the Brainerd Musical club has received the plaudits of America's most severe music critics.

Miss Kerr is gifted with a voice of natural flexibility, richness of tone, youth, personal charm and opulent tone. These qualities have brought her increasing success in opera and concert.

It is seldom that so remarkable a combination of voice, art and personality is encountered in so young an artist. She is an American girl with only American training and it is safe today that no other young artist has been so generally acclaimed. She has been cast in performances with such renowned stars as Mary Garden, Marguerite D'Alvarez, Rosa Raisa, Edith Mason, Claudia Muzio, Tito Schipa, Chaliapin, Anseau and Baklanoff, and in every instance she has shared measurably in the great enthusiasm such ensemble creates.

The Chicago Evening American had the following to say of Miss Kerr's performance in the role of Micaela in Carmen:
"Elizabeth Kerr was a charming Micaela. The voice has youthful freshness, clearness and volume. She sings correctly and smoothly and in perfect tune. The duet with Jose (Fernand Anseau) has never received warmer applause, in fact it was the hit of the first act, and after her big aria in the smuggler's scene the audience's approval might almost be called an ovation."

Irene Williams, lyric dramatic soprano of the Philadelphia Civic Opera company, will sing the title role of "Winona" in the opera of that name when it is given its Minnesota premiere in the new Minneapolis Auditorium Friday evening, January 27. The opera was written by Perry S. Williams of Minneapolis, and the score was composed by Alberto Bimboni, coach of many famous Metropolitan Opera stars, and director this winter of the Washington National Opera and Philadelphia Operatic society. Maestro Bimboni will personally direct the Minneapolis production. Also appearing in the opera will be Chief Canpoucan, celebrated Indian baritone of the Metropolitan Opera company of New York and the Philadelphia Grand Opera company, together with Ernest Davis, tenor, of the Chicago Grand Opera company and the Boston Grand Opera company. Telling the story of Minnesota's most popular Indian legends, the opera "Winona" is known as "Minnesota's own grand opera" and there is a general statewide interest in its production in Minneapolis next week.

Canadian Forest Revenue

The direct revenue received by Dominion and provincial governments from the forest in the form of rentals, royalties, stumpage charges, etc., amounts to $15,000,000 annually. In Europe it has been found that increased expenditure on modern protective methods has always been followed by a much more than proportionate increase in revenues.—Natural Resources Bulletin.

Two of Earliest Books

What is believed to be the first book printed in England is William Caxton's "Recuyell of the Histoyre of Troye," published in 1474, a translation of Raoul de Fevre's work. However, Caxton's "Dierces and Notable Wise Sayings of the Philosophers," printed November 18, 1477, is the first book that can with certainty be maintained to have been printed in England.

SYNOPSIS

Jeffrey Shore, young architect who has been forced to desert his profession because of failing vision, is rescued from a "soup-line" by Mickey Grogan, child of the streets, who introduces him to Winifred Davidson. Winifred encourages Jeffrey to make a new start in life and with her help he sketches plans for a group of buildings her employer expects to build and she promises to submit them. While Mickey is playing on the street with Susan Dale, another waif, Al Nevers, prize-fighter and bully, comes to Winifred's apartment and is enraged to find Jeffrey there. Winifred steps out of the room for a moment and Nevers warns Jeffrey that "Winnie's my girl, and you keep away from her or I'll break your neck."

Jeff would have taken the chance of having his neck broken but he decided that as long as he was Winifred's guest, he would respect her desire for peace. Instead, he said, "You're a prizefighter, aren't you, Mr. Nevers?"

"Yea, an' I'd hate to have to prove it to you."

"Well, perhaps I can accommodate you, some day, Mr. Nevers." The cool audacity of the young architect was extremely irritating to Al. "I'd just as soon accommodate ya right now," growled Al making a threatening step forward.

But at that moment, Winnie had come back into the room, and Al stopped in his tracks. "Oh, are you the voices of children came up to them shrilly from the back alley. In the alley there was sufficient illumination from a corner light to make crap-shooting possible, and there were two exits. This was a necessary precaution, for the policeman on the beat did not seem to care greatly for the ancient and surreptitious game of African goit.

Mickey and Susan were stars at this game. Children of the tenements are expert crap-shooters before they have taken their first steps, and sex makes very little difference in the degree of virtuosity attained. Thus, Susan was proud of the way she could make the "ivories waltz." Ringed about by a gang of hoodlums, she was completely in her element, and had forgotten her recent sadness because of the disappearance of the Murdofers. In the excitement of the game, pennies, marbles, candy and knives changed hands with remarkable speed. The youth who entered the game a millionaire departed a pauper, and the pauper was apt to emerge with the feeling that he was a member of the Rockefeller family.

Izzy Cohenstein, the smartest Jewish boy in the neighborhood, was suffering a streak of hard luck. No matter how cleverly he rolled the bones, no matter what words he spoke, he lost. And every time he lost, Israel's lament rose up into the still night air. "O!—o!—" moaned Izzy. "Is dis also a peenness? I theenk maybe going, Al?" she asked innocently. Had he been observing, he might have noticed the look of relief that flashed across her face. As it was, he was much too angry to see anything but red.

"Look-ee here, Winnie. You're my girl, see?"

"And haven't I any say in the matter, Al?" she asked with a glint of amusement in her eyes.

"I know what's best for ya. You want a guy who'll make his way up in da world. A guy like me, see? A guy what makes his own breaks and ain't a-scairt o' nothin'."

"A regular he-man from the Wide Open Spaces East of the Harlem River," said Winifred. "Excuse me, Al. I seem to be in rather a joking mood this evening."

Her taunts enraged him and he grabbed hold of one of her hands. But she remained cool and haughty, sensing that in icy detachment lay her power. Jeff got up to come to her aid, but her eyes told him to stay back. She was perfectly capable of handling the prize-fighter. "Let go my hand," she said coldly. "Ya think ya kin play around with me as much as ya like, eh?" asked Al, but just the same he let her hand go free.

"I don't think anything of the sort," she answered. "I've told you more than once that I don't care to have you around."

Her words were like peanuts that rolled off his thick, insensitive hide. "I know what I want, see? An' next time I come, I don't want to find that tramp here. Get me?"

She lifted her head with a haughty gesture. "Hear dare you? Who gave you the right to choose my friends? This is my apartment and I'll have anyone I wish here—and that leaves you out, Mr. Nevers." When he stepped out into the hall, she slammed the door in his face.

Al glared at the closed door for a moment as though considering the possibility of going back and carrying the girl off by force. When at last he made his way downstairs again, his expression was not good to see. As Mickey would have said, he looked like a murder going somewhere to happen.

"Why didn't you let me mix up with him?" asked Jeff after they had heard Al's footsteps descending the stairs.

"It isn't because I think you wouldn't have a chance with him," responded Winnie. "I have a feeling that he's yellow. But I don't think it wise for you to get banged up at this stage of your career, do you? You need all your strength and peace of mind for these plans."

"Of course, you're right, as always," he smiled. "But it took all my self-control to keep from busting that self-sufficient dog in the jaw."

"I know it, dear. But the practice of self-control is a virtue, isn't it?"

Silently, they resumed work, and

I chance my luck." And Izzy began to sing Where The River Shanon Flows.

"What's th' idea?" Mickey asked him.

"All by mine life I been a nice Jewish boy," explained Izzy. "But now comes de time ven I theenk I will become yet an Irisher. For it seems by me the Irishers they got all the luck mit thees Harlem Golt."

"But ain't it a sin to change your religion like that?" asked Mickey incredulously.

"It's a sen so long as you don't lose money by it," said Izzy. "Come savaan, come savaan. Darlinks spik it a nize langwitch to your papa. Nize hivorees. Breeng hit hum de bakon to Izzy."

No one paid any attention to the Hibernian crap shooter. They were leaning forward watching Susan. Spitting on the cubes, she spoke to them in wheedling tones and rattled them mysteriously in the palms of her hands before flinging them out. Just as soon as they stopping rolling, Mickey caught them up again and banded them back. "Roll 'em again," he advised.

She turned on him fiercely, seemingly forgetful that he was her fiancé. "Mind your own business, will ya? I bet that little cube would 'a come seven if you hadn't picked it up."

"Aw, come off Susie. It wasn't near a seven."

"It would 'a been if ya'd left it alone. Ya poor cold storage egg!" And so the argument started, added and abetted by excited voices until Susan slapped Mickey and he slapped her back with true tenement gallantry. Whereupon they began to fight like two little roosters. Izzy Cohenstein was shocked that these two should come to blows and vainly attempted to pull them apart. "Ess dees nize?" he asked Mickey. "Already it looks like you're married to her."

As soon as Izzy put his hand on Mickey, he found Susan on his back, clawing and scratching like a wild cat, and shrilling at him to leave Mickey alone. "Take your hands off Mickey!" she screamed. "Nobody's got any right to hit him but me 'cause I'm 'naged to him!"

And she began to pull Izzy's hair. "Bot you're not 'naged to me!" cried Izzy. "We're not even on spikin' toims. You tink maybe dees is a vig I got on my head?"

he asked attempting to free his hair of her hands.

Mickey, the true knight, now sprang to Susan's assistance and caught Izzy an upercut on the chin. "You jus' keep your han's off my skiff!" he commanded. "Tings has come to a purty pass when a feller can't even fight wit' his own fecanocy."

"I was just tryin' to make it a leetle peace in the family," explained Izzy.

Dives and Haunts of Underworld on Screen

Conventional backgrounds usually associated with crook melodramas were thrown into the discard in filming of "Underworld." Ben Hecht's powerful story written for Paramount, which is being presented at the Lyceum today and Wednesday. The Old Fiddlers contest will be held between shows each night.

Striking settings and colorful locales that breathe the spirit of realism have been invoked by Josef Von Sternberg, director of the smashing exposure of American underworld.

The scenes showing the heart of a metropolitan city were taken in downtown Los Angeles during the rush hour.

The underworld haunts, dingy cafes, hide-outs of criminals and dim warehouse district streets have a compelling interest, while offering opportunities for exceptional photography.

SYNOPSIS

Jeffrey Shore, young architect who has been forced to desert his profession because of failing vision, is rescued from a "roughing" by Mickey Grogan, child of the streets who introduces him to Winifred Davidson. Winifred encourages Jeffrey to make a new start in life and with her help he sketches plans for a group of buildings her employer expects to build and she promises to submit them. While Mickey is playing on the street with Susan Dale, another waif, Al Nevers, prize-fighter and bully, comes to Winifred's apartment and is enraged to find Jeffrey there. Winifred steps out of the room for a moment and Nevers warns Jeffrey that "Winnie's my girl, and you keep away from her or I'll break your neck."

Jeff would have taken the chance of having his neck broken but he decided that as long as he was Winifred's guest, he would respect her desire for peace. Instead, he said, "You're a prizefighter, aren't you, Mr. Nevers?"

"Yes, an' I'd hate to have to prove it to you."

"Well, perhaps I can accommodate you, some day, Mr. Nevers."

The cool audacity of the young architect was extremely irritating to Al. "I'd jus' as soon 'commode' ya right now," growled Al making a threatening step forward.

But at that moment, Winnie had come back into the room, and Al stopped in his tracks. "Oh, are you the voices of children came up to them shrilly from the back alley. In the alley there was sufficient illumination from a corner light to make a shooting possible, and there were two exits. This was a necessary precaution, for the policeman on the beat did not seem to care greatly for the ancient and surreptitious game of African golf.

Mickey and Susan were stars at this game. Children of the tenements are expert craps-shooters before they have taken their first steps, and sex makes very little difference in the degree of virtuosity attained. Thus, Susan was proud of the way she could make the "ivories" waltz. Ringed about by a gang of hoodlums, she was completely in her element, and had forgotten her recent sadness because of the disappearance of the Murlidorfers. In the excitement of the game, pennies, marbles, candy and knives changed hands with remarkable speed. The youth who entered the game a millionaire departed a pauper, and the pauper was apt to emerge with the feeling that he was a member of the Rockefeller family.

Izzy Cohenstein, the smartest Jewish boy in the neighborhood, was suffering a streak of hard luck. No matter how cleverly he rolled the bones, no matter what words he spoke, he lost. And every time he lost, Israel's lament rose up into the still night air. "O—oi!" moaned Izzy. "Is dis also a peezness? I theenk maybe going, Al?" she asked innocently. Had he been observing, he might have noticed the look of relief that flashed across her face. As it was, he was much too angry to see anything but red.

"Look-ee here, Winnie. You're my girl, see?"

"And haven't I any say in the matter, Al?" she asked with a glint of amusement in her eyes.

"I know what's best for ya. You want a guy who'll make his way up in da world. A guy like me, see? A guy what makes his own breaks and ain't a-scairt o' nothin."

"A regular he-man from the Wide Open Spaces East of the Harlem River," said Winifred. "Excuse me, Al. I seem to be in rather a joking mood this evening."

Her taunts enraged him and he grabbed hold of one of her hands. But she remained cool and haughty, sensing that in icy detachment lay her power. Jeff got up to come to her aid, but her eyes told him to stay back. She was perfectly capable of handling the prize-fighter. "Let go my hand," she said coldly. "Ya think ya kin play around with me as much as ya like, eh?" asked Al, but just the same he let her hand go free.

"I don't think anything of the sort," she answered. "I've told you more than once that I don't care to have you around."

Her words were like peanuts that rolled off his thick, insensitive hide. "I know what I want, see? An' next time I come, I don't want to find that tramp here. Get me?"

She lifted her head with a haughty gesture. "How dare you? Who gave you the right to choose my friends? This is my apartment and I'll have anyone I wish here—and that leaves you out, Mr. Nevers." When he stepped out into the hall, she slammed the door in his face.

Al glared at the closed door for a moment as though considering the possibility of going back and carrying the girl off by force. When at last he made his way downstairs again, his expression was not good to see. As Mickey would have said, he looked like a murder going somewhere to happen.

"Why didn't you let me mix up with him?" asked Jeff after they had heard Al's footsteps descending the stairs.

"I can't because I think you wouldn't have a chance with him," responded Winnie. "I have a feeling that he's yellow. But I don't think it wise for you to get banged up at this stage of your career, do you? You need all your strength and peace of mind for these plans."

"Of course, you're right, as always," he smiled. "But it took all my self-control to keep from busting that self-sufficient dog in the jaw."

"I know it, dear. But the practice of self-control is a virtue, isn't it?"

Silently, they resumed work, and

I chance my luck." And Izzy began to sing Where The River Shanon Flows.

"What's th' idea?" Mickey asked him.

"All by mine life I been a nice Jewish boy," explained Izzy. "But now comes de time ven I theenk I will become yet an Irisher. For I seems by me the Irishers they got all the luck mit thees Harlem Golf."

"But ain't it a sin to change your religion like that?" asked Mickey incredulously.

"It's a sin so long as you don't lose money by it," said Izzy. "Come savaan, come 'laven. Darlinks spit it a nice langwitch to your papa. Nize hivoeres. Breeng hit hum de bakon to Izzy."

No one paid any attention to the Hibernian craps shooter. They were leaning forward watching Susan. Spitting on the cubes, she spoke to them in wheedling tones and rattled them mysteriously in the palms of her hands before flinging them out. Just as soon as they stopped rolling, Mickey caught them up again and banded them back. "Roll 'em again," he advised.

She turned on him fiercely, seemingly forgetful that he was her fiancé. "Mind your own business, will ya? I bet that little cube would 'a come seven if you hadn't picked it up."

"Aw, come off Susie. It wasn't near a seven."

"It would 'a been if ya'd left it alone. Ya poor cold storage egg!"

And so the argument started, aided and abetted by excited voices until Susan slapped Mickey and he slapped her back with true tenement gallantry. Whereupon they began to fight like two little roosters. Izzy Cohenstein was shocked that these two should come to blows and vainly attempted to pull them apart. "Ess dees nize!" he asked Mickey. "Already it looks like you're married to her."

As soon as Izzy put his hand on Mickey, he found Susan on his back, clawing and scratching like a wild cat, and shrilling at him to leave Mickey alone. "Take your hands off Mickey!" she screamed. "Nobody's got any right to hit him but me 'cause I'm 'ngaged to him!"

And she began to pull Izzy's hair. "Bot you're not 'ngaged to me!" cried Izzy. "We're not even on spikin' toims. You tink maybe dees is a vig I got on my head?"

he asked attempting to free his hair of her hands.

Mickey, the true knight, now sprang to Susan's assistance and caught Izzy an uppercut on the chin. "You jus' keep your han's off my skirt!" he commanded. "T'ings has come to a purty pass when a fella can't even fight wit' his own feecaney."

"I was just tryin' to make it a leetle peace in the family," explained Izzy.

OUR PARK SYSTEM

THE past week the Rotary club had the pleasure of hearing the three park commissioners tell of the parks in their charge and the work they have done and their plans for the future are indications of the public spirit they have always exhibited.

Carl Wright has charge of the Tourist park, Mrs. A. C. Weber is the guiding genius of Gregory park and Hugo A. Kaatz has the fortunes of Lum park in his keeping. In addition Mr. Kaatz is also the secretary-treasurer of the park board.

Mr. Wright explained how the Tourist park had been made self-sustaining. A moderate charge is made for the services and the tourists do not object to pay for same, as so many conveniences are offered. In the past season 4,600 cars visited the park and 17,250 people were registered. Revenue derived was $1,800, expenses approximately $1,200, and the balance was put into park improvement. The park started with eight tables and now has 19.

An assembly room was added where the tourists meet, have their concerts and song fests and other amusements. A wash room, entirely separate for the ladies, is to be built. The cottage innovation was tried out last year and proved successful. Nearly every night the three cottages were occupied. As to the value of tourist travel, Mr. Wright estimated that at the very lowest figure, each tourist would spend at least $2 in Brainerd.

Mrs. A. C. Weber, commissioner for Gregory park, was grateful to be at the meeting and said the Rotary club has always been a friend of the park board. She thanked the club for what had been done on North Sixth street. She mentioned work of other organizations, the D. A. R., who erected the boulder monument, etc. A bird house had been donated by the Musical club. More of these bird houses are needed and a cement bird bath.

She had been informed that friends of the park were to build a roof over the band stand. The tennis courts are used by about 100 people on warm summer days. Two more tennis courts are necessary to supply the increasing demand. If they cannot be built at Gregory park, she suggested one or more courts for the south side. Playground equipment is needed at the park, for some of it is wearing out.

The poplar trees, which shed so much cotton have been removed and more trees are required to replace them. Elm trees have been planted. They are sturdy, but of slow growth. Regarding lighting the park, she appreciated the lamp posts placed. More are required as many people use the park as a thoroughfare, using the walks north and south and east and west.

Two sides of the park border paved streets and the other sides should be paved too, she said. The park is centrally located, travel is heavy and the streets should be paved with cement. In sections of North Sixth and North Broadway the parking is now taken care of by the park board.

In closing, Mrs. Weber suggested that street signs be placed on lamp posts. The downtown district should have these signs.

Hugo A. Kaatz spoke of Lum park and the efforts continuously directed to make the area more popular and to cause Brainerd people to take an interest in the amusements and recreation there offered. The board tries to make the park pleasant and comfortable for city people and out of town visitors.

Last year a rustic bandstand was erected, also rustic benches and speaker's stand. He praised the work of the caretaker, Mr. Ritter.

The new area added to the park includes 26 acres, acquired through the generosity of the late Leon E. Lum. The land has been partially cleared. The entrance is very attractive and has received much favorable comment. Mr. Kaatz urged all clubs, associations and organizations of the city to make every possible use of the park and to encourage members and friends to visit the park and spread its merits.

The three speakers received the unanimous thanks of the Rotarians for their comprehensive addresses. Brainerd is to be congratulated on having such an active group of commissioners who are planning wisely, working diligently and making the park system self-sustaining in quite a measure. The citizens owe them a large measure of thanks for their splendid efforts and the success they have achieved.

"THE LID IS OFF"

"THE Lid is Off," announces the Brainerd Journal-Press. Ralph ought to know. He's drawn the full legal rate from the county for about two years on the Commissioners' proceedings. He agreed to furnish supplements to the other papers in the county and pay them their share for handling and mailing them. Did he do it? Not on your tinfole.

Now, when the County Commissioners arrange to have the printing done by publishers who will live up to their agreements, Ralph objects by threatening to "expose" the commissioners.

Every citizen in the county knows that there are no finer, conscientious and business-like men anywhere, than the gentlemen who are serving the people of Crow Wing county today on the Board of Commissioners. That they did wrong in not giving Ralph the county printing is absurd. They would not spend one nickel of the people's money wantonly. And they showed good sense in having the county's business published in every paper in the county, except one—at the price of one legal rate.—Decorated Enterprise.

COSTLY ERROR IN ADVERTISING

Boot and Shoe Records gives an expert opinion on the costly error in advertising, when the factory or firm quits advertising.

"It penalizes you every time you slow up or 'ease off.' Stopping and starting is the most expensive thing in railroading. Every railroad man will tell you that the through train that runs long distances without stops is the most economical train to operate. So it is in advertising. It should be a through train to be resultful.

"If a merchant wants to pass out of the public mind, all he needs to do is to discontinue advertising. It is better never to start than to start and stop. Competitors are eager to take advantage of the store's failure to stay out in the bright light of publicity.

"The man who says he cannot afford to advertise continuously makes a grievous business error. He cannot afford not to advertise. He cannot afford to follow an in-and-out policy with his advertising. He cannot afford to scatter his forces and run an 'occasional ad.'"

FOOTBALL BANQUET, BRAINERD ONIAN PLAYS, CHRISTMAS BANQUET ALL IN '28 ANNUAL

Have you reserved a copy of the 1928 Brainerd Annual yet? Then we advise you to get hot! A sales campaign is progressing and you'll want a book—pay up now and you can spend your time anticipating next spring.

Your Annual this year is to be a surprising book—more than ever it will have caught the spirit of your school days and held it between its covers. Already it is taking shape—the senior section has a portrait of each graduate—classmates of today—how many of them do you know? Photographs of the football team and graphic descriptions of B. H. S.'s best season in a decade appear in the athletic section. A fighting gang that couldn't be held—can you see it? And what are you thinking of—Crosby and the Spalding? A certain basketball game with Crosby-Ironton—600 people in the gym and you couldn't hear the referee's whistle.

Activities—the class play thrills a packed house at the Park theatre. Football men are given splendid banquet—Fuller is chosen captain for next year—the Semper Paratus culminate a successful season with a big time in the sewing room.

The Juniors and Seniors enjoy themselves at the Prom—the nicest and most ambitious event of the season.

And a Feature Section that is a surprise! Wait till you see it! And it's got a special line of hokey mixed up in it. Do you suppose you could be some of the "famous peepul"—well maybe!

Think it over. Talk it over. Talk it up! Just as soon as you find one of Kathleen Early's sales staff (or herself) and pass the buck we'll look up a copy for you.

Last year's staff printed 350 copies of the '27 book and a lot of stragglers came along and were going to knock the dump down if they couldn't get one so the staff had the printers dig up a bunch of proof sheets and paste them together and the mob was satisfied. And we'll write that on check paper for you.

And we've had offers of $2.00 for the '27 book.

You'll want a '28 Annual. One dollar buys it—let us know.

B. H. S. SECONDS DEFEAT C-I. HIGH

The B. H. S. second team won a decisive victory over the C-I. seconds. Crosby displayed a number of men but Brainerd displayed the dope and won 32 to 16.

The men on the second team deserve a great deal of praise because there were four who had never played an entire game before. The first quarter was spent in getting acquainted with the floor. During this time Crosby made one basket.

The team got their stride the second quarter and from this time on played a purely offensive game outplaying Crosby.

Dybvick was the outstanding man and scorer. He made 11 of the 32 points. Goedderz followed close, making 7 points and also playing a wonderful game as guard. Shuetty displayed wonderful team work and got 2 baskets.

Crosby came out on the floor with 22 men to Brainerd's 7. However, Brainerd proved too strong for any combination that could be made from C-I's men.

The following men played for Brainerd: Dybvick, Halverson, Schuetty, Paine, Haukala, Hoffbauer and Goedderz.

Crosby: Johnstone, Zohast, Mattson, Gustad, Bennett, Ostram, Olson, Blom, Klom and Middleton.

WHAT THINGS MEAN

Can you see truth in a weather'd pine

Whipped by wind and rain?
Is beauty hid in scrubby brush,
Or sere and rocky lane?

Are you inspired by whispering winds

Around the window sills?
Or winds that shriek and moan and scream,
Boding a thousand ills?

Can pleasure come from scorching sun,

Whose relentless rays are sent
Upon the toilers of the field,
Who with weariness are bent?

Can romance find a little old shack
Nestled among some trees
Where people work twelve hours a day

So they won't starve or freeze?

Farm implements bedeck the yard,
Or perhaps a pile of wood,

There is still a heap of sawdust
Where the old-icehouse stood.

But the gnarled and twisted white-pine

That looks so old and forlorn,
Has been a haven of refuge
Since my life's early morn.

I'm lulled to sleep at eventide
By soft winds overhead;
And for the bluster of wintertime
I've not the faintest dread.

I find pride in tasks accomplished
'Neath the blistering sun—
It means that I have borne my share
Of the work that must be done.

To me the house is a mansion
A home beyond compare
For I've found faith and hope and love;

For what else should I care?

AT WOOD-CUTTING

One morning our wee humorist, who is "Dicky" Ebert, as you know, came to me and remarked that he thought he could make any tree in the forest topple over at hearing one of his jokes. I deemed it highly probable but yet held a little skepticism on the idea; so I offered that we test his ability.

So forth we went and sure enough, every tree that he told that joke to crashed down; that is every tree but one and that one he recited little witticisms to for a half hour and it moved not. Finally he gave up and we started for home. Just as we reached the edge of the forest, however, we heard a tremendous crash back in the thicket. We turned and rushed to the scene and there lay the old tree completely uprooted.

"But why did it take so long?" asked the puzzled Richard.
"Why it's quite plain," I said bending over it, "you see, old fellow, it's an English Walnut."

CLUB WILL HAVE HARD TIME PARTY IN THE NEAR FUTURE

The Semper Paratus club held its regular meeting on Thursday morning at 8:30 in the gymnasium. The secretary read the minutes and, as no one seemed to raise any objections to them, they were accepted. The question (or problem) of paying dues was again brought up. The members were urged to pay them before the party, which will take place in two or three weeks. Miss Taylor explained more fully the details of the Declaration contest. Several students have enrolled already, but very few of these are boys. She remarked on the disadvantages of having few boys and several girls, and urged the boys, as well as the girls, to come out and "do their stuff."

Joe Greener, as chairman of the party committee, demanded information as to what kind of party to have, where to have it, and other things concerning it. The majority of the members were in favor of a Hard Time Party, as that is what it may be. However, that is up to the committee to decide.

A program consisting of the following numbers was given:

Piano solo—William McClenahan.
Reading—Stuart Patterson.
Vocal solo—William Johnstone, accompanied by William McClenahan.

The next meeting will take place in two or three weeks. William McClenahan, Gaylord Kinney, and Clarence Wetterlund are to take charge of the program, at that time. The meeting was adjourned after the program, as there was no other business, or reason for staying.

We find that we quite agree with the Student Critic in the December issue of the Hi Ho of Haddingford that "the jokes are so old they are becoming new."

One of the new exchanges we have received recently is the Rah! Rah! from Two Harbors; it is a very well arranged paper. One thing we noticed was that there was to be a want ad column in that paper where students could advertise for lost articles, at the rate of five cents a line. We hope the staff makes money.

The "Glenconian" of Glencoe and the "Tiger Herald" of Marshall, Minn., we would like to see exchange columns but otherwise the papers are well arranged.

BRAINERD STAGES SENSATIONAL RALLY IN SECOND HALF

Not having defeated Brainerd since 1923, C-I's four year team was out to beat Brainerd Friday night. Amidst wild cheers from the side lines, the C-I. girls ran on the floor and sank a goal with every practise shot. The reaction and the big floor spelled stage-fright for Brainerd's inexperienced players.

The whistle blew. The game was on! Brainerd was floundered. The quarter ended 8-2, favoring C-I.

The second quarter began. Brainerd found herself. She held C-I. and the half ended 8-4. From then on Brainerd found her stride and C-I's game was one of defense. The ball was in Brainerd's territory the greater part of the second half and had Brainerd had luck in shots, she could have piled up a big score.

The game was marked by very few fouls, two being called on Brainerd and one on C-I. Spectators at Crosby proclaimed it to be the fastest and best game ever played on their floor.

Brainerd has seldom played with a team which played straight girls' rules with the skill, speed, and sportsmanship displayed by C-I.

The line-ups were:
Crosby—M. Peterson, f; E. Anderson, f; Proctor, c; Brown, c; Snyder, g; Rochon, g; Darling substituted for Rochon.

Brainerd—Fogelstrom, f; Dybvick f; Molstad, f; Kleven, c; Wahlstrom, c; Peters, c; Crawford, g; Shields, g; Early, g.

Miss Dennerly and Miss Reinertsen officiated.

A football team that fought thru a season that hasn't been equalled in ten years! Prospects for next year. You'll want a '28 Annual.

MR. BERESFORD

SPEAKS TO STAFF

MR. BERESFORD RETURNS TO CONFER WITH STAFF ON EDITING OF PUBLICATION

A special meeting of the Brainerd staff was called last Tuesday morning. Mr. Beresford, representative of Buckbee, Mears Company, visited the high school and talked to the staff on questions pertaining to the issuing of the yearly annual. Much information was gained by the different members on the subject of the divisions of the book which they are to edit. The discussion was especially enjoyed because of our former acquaintance with Mr. Beresford. It seemed like old times to have him in our midst.

We are all hoping to profit by the points which we learned and are going to do our best to use them in our work. Everyone on the staff is striving to exceed the quality of the annuals of former years; the results will interestingly be watched by all.

The Blue and Whites nosed out Crosby-Ironton 18 to 11 thus continuing to set the pace for the district.

It was two teams considered equal in power fighting for supremacy that gave the fans an opportunity to see one of the fastest games ever played on the local floor.

When the two teams stood in their positions waiting for referee Adams to start the game, Brainerd looked like the inferior, for C-I. had much the larger team. Then the game started and at this time neither team showed any supremacy. It was not until near the middle of the quarter before either team scored. Then Brainerd made two baskets in rapid succession and the crowd went wild. Radosevich broke the spell for C-I. by making a basket and this gave C-I. more fighting spirit, for neither team scored a field goal the remainder of the quarter. Krueger made a free throw; thus the quarter ended 4 to 3 in Brainerd's favor.

The second quarter looked bad for Brainerd. Although they were fighting hard and getting to the baskets, they failed to make them. While C-I. made five points this quarter, Brainerd only made two. The half ended 8 to 6 in C-I's favor. It was nobody's game yet.

Brainerd came back the third quarter a new team and piled up 6 points against their opponent's 2. The cagers were having more success. They were making their baskets now and were getting real close to the basket also. "If Brainerd keeps this up, they will surely win," was the opinion of all the spectators.

And they did keep it up. Six more points were added to C-I's one. Near the middle of this quarter something happened to C-I. They began to give out, their shooting was very inaccurate and so Brainerd had the game won.

Welliver's dribbling proved one of the most spectacular features of the game. He would start in his territory, zig-zag down the floor getting by every one but was not so successful in shooting. However, the team as a whole worked as a unit, each man contributing his share to the victory.

The lineup:
Brainerd—Field goals, Wise, 1; LaCourse, 2; Guin, 2; Welliver, 1; Fuller, 1; free throws, Guin, 3 out of 5; Welliver, 1 out of 3.

Crosby-Ironton — Field Goals, Smart, 0; Krueger, 1; Butorac, 0; Pomeroy, 2; Salovieh, 0; free throws Smart, 1 out of 2; Krueger, 1 out of 5; Salovieh, 1 out of 1.

Who, What and Where

Mr. Beresford was at the high school Tuesday morning and spoke to the staff a few minutes in regard to write-ups for the annual.

For the past week, a stray kitten has been making the halls of the high school its home.

Molly Molstad burned a hole in her dress in chemistry class the other day while she was experimenting with acid.

The third period gym class Wednesday had a sort of party, with Catherine Vadnais and Glenadine Mahood in charge. One of the features of the party was a treasure hunt which was very interesting. The treasures were bags of candy and nuts which also served as refreshments.

You'll want a '28 Annual because sometime you'll want to see again the kids that made the Senior Christmas Banquet such a fascinating memory. One dollar gives you a book of your own!

OUR PARK SYSTEM

THE past week the Rotary club had the pleasure of hearing the three park commissioners tell of the parks in their charge and the work they have done and their plans for the future are indications of the public spirit they have always exhibited.

Carl Wright has charge of the Tourist park, Mrs. A. C. Weber is the guiding genius of Gregory park and Hugo A. Kaatz has the fortunes of Lum park in his keeping. In addition Mr. Kaatz is also the secretary-treasurer of the park board.

Mr. Wright explained how the Tourist park had been made self-sustaining. A moderate charge is made for the services and the tourists do not object to pay for same, as so many conveniences are offered. In the past season 4,600 cars visited the park and 17,250 people were registered. Revenue derived was $1,800, expenses approximately $1,200, and the balance was put into park improvement. The park started with eight tables and now has 19.

An assembly room was added where the tourists meet, have their concerts and song fests and other amusements. A wash room, entirely separate for the ladies, is to be built. The cottage innovation was tried out last year and proved successful. Nearly every night the three cottages were occupied. As to the value of tourist travel, Mr. Wright estimated that at the very lowest figure, each tourist would spend at least $2 in Brainerd.

Mrs. A. C. Weber, commissioner for Gregory park, was grateful to be at the meeting and said the Rotary club has always been a friend of the park board. She thanked the club for what had been done on North Sixth street. She mentioned work of other organizations, the D. A. R., who erected the boulder monument, etc. A bird house had been donated by the Musical club. More of these bird houses are needed and a cement bird bath.

She had been informed that friends of the park were to build a roof over the band stand. The tennis courts are used by about 100 people on warm summer days. Two more tennis courts are necessary to supply the increasing demand. If they cannot be built at Gregory park, she suggested one or more courts for the south side. Playground equipment is needed at the park, for some of it is wearing out.

The poplar trees, which shed so much cotton have been removed and more trees are required to replace them. Elm trees have been planted. They are sturdy, but of slow growth. Regarding lighting the park, she appreciated the lamp posts placed. More are required as many people use the park as a thoroughfare, using the walks north and south and east and west.

Two sides of the park border paved streets and the other sides should be paved too, she said. The park is centrally located, travel is heavy and the streets should be paved with cement. In sections of North Sixth and North Broadway the parking is now taken care of by the park board.

In closing, Mrs. Weber suggested that street signs be placed on lamp posts. The downtown district should have these signs.

Hugo A. Kaatz spoke of Lum park and the efforts continuously directed to make the area more popular and to cause Brainerd people to take an interest in the amusements and recreation there offered. The board tries to make the park pleasant and comfortable for city people and out of town visitors.

Last year a rustic bandstand was erected, also rustic benches and speaker's stand. He praised the work of the caretaker, Mr. Ritter.

The new area added to the park includes 26 acres, acquired through the generosity of the late Leon E. Lum. The land has been partially cleared. The entrance is very attractive and has received much favorable comment. Mr. Kaatz urged all clubs, associations and organizations of the city to make every possible use of the park and to encourage members and friends to visit the park and spread its merits.

The three speakers received the unanimous thanks of the Rotarians for their comprehensive addresses. Brainerd is to be congratulated on having such an active group of commissioners who are planning wisely, working diligently and making the park system self-sustaining in quite a measure. The citizens owe them a large measure of thanks for their splendid efforts and the success they have achieved.

"THE LID IS OFF!"

"THE Lid is Off," announces the Brainerd Journal-Press. Ralph ought to know. He's drawn the full legal rate from the county for about two years on the Commissioners' proceedings. He agreed to furnish supplements to the other papers in the county and pay them their share for handling and mailing them. Did he do it? Not on your tintype.

Now, when the County Commissioners arrange to have the printing done by publishers who will live up to their agreements, Ralph objects by threatening to "expose" the commissioners.

Every citizen in the county knows that there are no finer, conscientious and business-like men anywhere, than the gentlemen who are serving the people of Crow Wing county today on the Board of Commissioners. That they did wrong in not giving Ralph the county printing is absurd. They would not spend one nickel of the people's money wantonly. And they showed good sense in having the county's business published in every paper in the county, except one—at the price of one legal rate.—Deerwood Enterprise.

COSTLY ERROR IN ADVERTISING

Boor and Shoe Records gives an expert opinion on the costly error in advertising, when the factory or firm quits advertising.

"It penalizes you every time you slow up or 'ease off'. Stopping and starting is the most expensive thing in railroading. Every railroad man will tell you that the through train that runs long distances without stops is the most economical train to operate. So it is in advertising. It should be a through train to be resultful.

"If a merchant wants to pass out of the public mind, all he needs to do is to discontinue advertising. It is better never to start than to start and stop. Competitors are eager to take advantage of the store's failure to stay out in the bright light of publicity.

"The man who says he cannot afford to advertise continuously makes a grievous business error. He cannot afford not to advertise. He cannot afford to follow an in-and-out policy with his advertising. He cannot afford to scatter his forces and run an 'occasional ad'."

LAST TWO MONTHS PACKED WITH MANY INTERESTING AND MEMORABLE EVENTS

FOOTBALL BANQUET, BRAINERD ONIANS, CHRISTMAS BANQUET ALL IN '28 ANNUAL

Have you reserved a copy of the 1928 Brainerd Annual yet? Then we advise you to get hot! A sales campaign is progressing and you'll want a book—pay up now and you can spend your time anticipating next spring.

Your Annual this year is to be a surprising book—more than ever it will have caught the spirit of your school days and held it between its covers. Already it is taking shape—the senior section has a portrait of each graduate—classmates of today—how many of them do you know? Photographs of the football team and graphic descriptions of B. H. S.'s best season in a decade appear in the athletic section. A fighting gang that couldn't be held—can you see it? And what are you thinking of—Crosby and the Spalding? A certain basketball game with Crosby-Ironton—600 people in the gym and you couldn't hear the referee's whistle.

Activities—the class play thrills a packed house at the Park theatre. Football men are given splendid banquet—Fuller is chosen captain for next year—the Semper Paratus culminate a successful season with a big time in the sewing room.

The Juniors and Seniors enjoy themselves at the Prom—the nicest and most ambitious event of the season.

And a Feature Section that is a surprise! Wait till you see it! And it's got a special line of hokey mixed up in it. Do you suppose you could be some of the "famous peep!"—well maybe!

Think it over. Talk it over. Talk it up! Just as soon as you find one of Kathleen Early's sales staff (or herself) and pass the buck we'll lock up a copy for you.

Last year's staff printed 350 copies of the '27 book and a lot of stragglers came along and were going to knock the dump down if they couldn't get one so the staff had the printers dig up a bunch of proof sheets and paste them together and the mob was satisfied. And we'll write that on check paper for you.

And we've had offers of $2.00 for the '27 book.

You'll want a '28 Annual. One dollar buys it—let us know.

B. H. S. SECONDS DEFEAT C.-I. HIGH

The B. H. S. second team won a decisive victory over the C.-I. seconds. Crosby displayed a number of men but Brainerd displayed the dope and won 32 to 16.

The men on the second team deserve a great deal of praise because there were four who had never played an entire game before. The first quarter was spent in getting acquainted with the floor. During this time Crosby made one basket.

The team got their stride the second quarter and from this time on played a purely offensive game outplaying Crosby.

Dybvick was the outstanding man and scorer. He made 11 of the 32 points. Goedderz followed close, making 7 points and also playing a wonderful game as guard. Shetty displayed wonderful team work and got 2 baskets.

The reaction and the big floor spelled stage-fright for Brainerd's inexperienced players.

The whistle blew. The game was on! Brainerd was floundered. The quarter ended 8-2, favoring C.-I.

The second quarter began. Brainerd found herself. She held C.-I. and the half ended 8-4. From then on Brainerd found her stride and C.-I.'s game was one of defense. The ball was in Brainerd's territory the greater part of the second half and had Brainerd had luck in shots, she could have piled up a big score.

The game was marked by very few fouls, two being called on Brainerd and one on C.-I. Spectators at Crosby proclaimed it to be the fastest and best game ever played on their floor.

Brainerd has seldom played with a team which played straight girls' rules with the skill, speed, and sportsmanship displayed by C.-I.

The line-ups were:

Crosby—M. Peterson, f; E. Anderson, f; Proctor, c; Brown, c; Snyder, g; Rochon, g; Darling substituted for Rochon.

Brainerd—Fogelstrom, f; Dybvick f; Molstad, f; Kleven, c; Wahlstrom, c; Peters, c; Crawford, g; Shields, g; Early, g.

Miss Dennerly and Miss Reinertsen officiated.

A football team that fought thru a season that hasn't been equalled in ten years! Prospects for next year. You'll want a '28 Annual.

MR. BERESFORD SPEAKS TO STAFF

MR. BERESFORD RETURNS TO CONFER WITH STAFF ON EDITING OF PUBLICATION

A special meeting of the Brainerd staff was called last Tuesday morning. Mr. Beresford, representative of Buckbee, Mears Company, visited the high school and talked to the staff on questions pertaining to the issuing of the yearly annual. Much information was gained by the different members on the subject of the divisions of the book which they are to edit. The discussion was especially enjoyed because of our former acquaintance with Mr. Beresford. It seemed like old times to have him in our midst.

We are all hoping to profit by the points which we learned and are going to do our best to use them in our work. Everyone on the staff is striving to exceed the quality of the annuals of former years; the results will interestingly be watched by all.

The Blue and Whites nosed out Crosby-Ironton 18 to 11 thus continuing to set the pace for the district.

It was two teams considered equal in power fighting for supremacy that gave the fans an opportunity to see one of the fastest games ever played on the local floor.

When the two teams stood in their positions waiting for referee Adams to start the game, Brainerd looked like the inferior, for C.-I. had much the larger team. Then the game started and at this time neither team showed any supremacy. It was not until near the middle of the quarter before either team scored. Then Brainerd made two baskets in rapid succession and the crowd went wild. Radosevich broke the spell for C.-I. by making a basket and this gave C.-I. more fighting spirit, for neither team scored a field goal the remainder of the quarter. Krueger made a free throw; thus the quarter ended 4 to 3 in Brainerd's favor.

The second quarter looked bad for Brainerd. Although they were fighting hard and getting to the baskets, they failed to make them. While C.-I. made five points this quarter, Brainerd only made two. The half ended 8 to 6 in C.-I.'s favor. It was nobody's game yet.

Brainerd came back the third quarter a new team and piled up 6 points against their opponent's 2. The cagers were having more success. They were making their baskets now and were getting real close to the basket also. "If Brainerd keeps this up, they will surely win," was the opinion of all the spectators.

And they did keep it up. Six more points were added to C.-I.'s one. Near the middle of this quarter something happened to C.-I. They began to give out, their shooting was very inaccurate and so Brainerd had the game won.

Welliver's dribbling proved one of the most spectacular features of the game. He would start in his territory, zig-zag down the floor getting by every one but was not so successful in shooting. However, the team as a whole worked as a unit, each man contributing his share to the victory.

The lineup:

Brainerd—Field goals, Wise, 1; LaCourse, 2; Guin, 2; Welliver, 1; Fuller, 1; free throws, Guin, 3 out of 5; Welliver, 1 out of 3.

Crosby-Ironton—Field Goals, Smart, 0; Krueger, 1; Butora, 0; Pomeroy, 2; Salovich, 0; free throws Smart, 1 out of 2; Krueger, 1 out of 5; Salovich, 1 out of 1.

Who, What and Where

Mr. Beresford was at the high school Tuesday morning and spoke to the staff a few minutes in regard to write-ups for the annual.

For the past week, a stray kitten has been making the halls of the high school its home.

Molly Molstad burned a hole in her dress in chemistry class the other day while she was experimenting with acid.

The third period gym class Wednesday had a sort of party, with Catherine Vajna and Gwendoline Mahood in charge. One of the features of the party was a treasure hunt which was very interesting. The treasures were bags of candy and nuts which also served as refreshments.

You'll want a '28 Annual because sometime you'll want to see again the kids that made the Senior Christmas Banquet such a fascinating memory. One dollar gives you a book of your own!

CITY CONTINUES TO WORK FOR ARMORY

Chances of Securing Building in Near Future Slight, Legion Learns

MUST WAIT TURN

Brainerd Stands 47th in Line States Adjutant General E. A. Walsh

Brainerd's chances of securing an armory in the near future, diminished last night when Adjutant General E. A. Walsh stated in a talk to a large gathering of interested citizens at the Iron Exchange hall that it would be at least five years before Brainerd would be in line for an armory considering the situation that there are now 47 cities that have their application in before Brainerd. The Legion, City Council, Rotary and Lions club will forward resolutions of intention to authorities to secure an armory as soon as possible to be placed on file with the state adjutant's department.

The meeting was called primarily by the American Legion and developed into a large public gathering with representations from the majority of public organizations in the city.

Commander E. H. Rhodes of the local post of the American Legion presided. William V. Turcotte of the Legion committee including Henry C. Mills and Clyde E. Parker outlined the work that had been entrusted to the committee.

Adjutant General Walsh stated that he was glad to meet with the people of Brainerd and glad to see that they were back of the proposition to secure an armory.

He explained the national defense act providing for armory areas, nine corps areas, a total of 54 divisions. Minnesota is in the seventh corps area with two national guard divisions, the 34th, 87 percent organized. From 1922 to 1925 the guards witnessed a phenomenal growth. Later, however, an order had been received limiting growth of the organization, and some time may now ensue before federal or state authorities will allot a new unit.

In securing an armory and a guard unit certain things are required of the community which must give its moral support, a deed to the site and $1,000 deposit as an evidence of good faith, he said.

The speaker outlined the advantages of instruction of those joining the unit. Discipline is stressed as the most important factor, with further instruction in training camps under strict supervision, where patriotism and loyalty are instilled. They are pledged to respond to a call of riot, war, insurrection or catastrophes. They take a dual service oath to president and governor.

"If the unit comes to Brainerd," said the speaker, "I hope the Legion will stand back of it."

DELANEY AND UZCUDUN K. O. OPPONENTS

RICKARD'S NEW ELIMINATION CONTEST IS ON

DELANEY KNOCKED OUT MONTGOMERY IN TWENTY SECONDS

KEELEY BRUSHED OUT OF UZCUDUN'S WAY IN TWO ROUNDS

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Jan. 17.—The new elimination contest to find an opponent for Gene Tunney got away to a slashing, battering start and found Jack Delaney and Paulino Uzcudun all set for the next step forward.

Last night in one New York arena Delaney knocked out Sully Montgomery, a towering football man, in 20 seconds. At another arena Uzcudun brushed Ed Keeley of Bridgeport out of his road in two rounds.

And New York's fight fans got to see some heavy punching, even though it didn't last long.

The Montgomery-Delaney fight just about qualified the former collegian for the horizontal championship, a doubtful honor now held by most of the British heavyweights. They came out and Delaney danced around his foe, who was 35 pounds heavier than the former light heavyweight champion.

Delaney shot a stiff left to the head and then a vicious right. Montgomery went down and remained there—a knockout in 20 seconds.

Paulino was faster and more nimble easy a time with Keeley who was slated as a heavy puncher. Twice before Paulino and Keeley have been matched and the bout were called off. There were those unkind enough to say the Basque was a little frightened.

But there certainly was no indication those charges were right last night.

Paulino was faster and more nible than usual. In the first round he snapped lefts to Keeley's head repeatedly and a couple of hard rights had the New Englander groggy.

In the second round Paulino drove Keeley all over the ring with hard rights and the New England fighter was almost out on his feet when Referee Arthur Donovan stopped the bout after 2 minutes and 50 seconds of the round.

The two battles now definitely put Delaney and Paulino back in the running as heavyweight contenders along with Heenev, Sharkey, Risko and a few others.

"SPECK" HANSON ROLLS SEASON'S HIGH PIN MARK

CHALKS UP 627 FOR THE THREE GAMES WHILE MATES DEFEAT ELKS NO. 2

I. O. O. F. TAKES TWO OUT OF THREE FROM JOHN M. BYE CLOTHING CO.

"Speck" Hanson, of the Chesterfields, set a new high mark for individual scoring last night by rolling a total of 627 pins for the three games against the Elks No. 2, which the Chesterfields took all three.

The Chesterfields also established the highest team score of the season. They have won six straight in the last two weeks.

Henry Cunningham of the John M. Bye team rolled the high score of 612, but his teammates failed to come through with the necessary scores to win from the I. O. O. F. The Odd Fellows won two out of three.

Clarence Van Essen rolled the highest individual game on the alleys last week when he chalked up the high score of 278. It was not a league game, however.

MOOSE LAKE FIVE MEETS LEGION BOYS HERE TOMORROW

The American Legion team will make a strong bid to dethrone the Moose Lake aggregation from their coveted position in the independent cage circles of the state tomorrow evening at the high school gym.

Moose Lake stands a good chance of winning the independent cage championship of the state this year provided that Brainerd does not oust them.

The visitors will arrive here at noon tomorrow from Duluth and on Thursday they will journey to Aitkin to meet the Company B team.

The following local men will take the floor under the American Legion colors tomorrow night: Captain Heikkinen, Marshall, Avery, Fitzharris, Lowe, DeRoche, O. Heikkinen, Whitlock, Ericsson and Hagberg. The city team has yet to lose their first home game this season and will make a strong attempt to keep their slate clean. Fred Sanborn will referee.

The game will be the last home game before the cagers start out on their road tour which takes them to Biwabik, Grand Rapids, Keewatin, Moose Lake and Superior during the week of January 24 to January 28. On their return they will play the Frazee five on February 1.

DEMPEY NOT SURE IF HE WANTS TO FIGHT AGAIN

Los Angeles, Jan. 17.—(U.P.)—"I'm not sure I want to fight again," Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, said here, commenting on a report that he would meet Gene Tunney in New York, in June.

He added, however, that "if I can convince myself I can get back in good condition, and if they take care of me financially, I guess June is as good as any time."

The Illustrated Daily News said today, however, that Jack Dempsey would meet Jack Sharkey, Tom Heenev, or Johnny Risko, in Madison Square Garden, New York, within 90 days.

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY
UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

Tommy Loughran, world's light heavyweight champion, announces he will follow in the footsteps of his predecessors and seek the heavyweight title as well.

The news is not particularly disturbing to the present champion of the unlimited division, but in another year or so Gene Tunney may have reason to take Tommy seriously.

The first thing the Philadelphia man must do is to develop a knockout punch. You have to hit the big fellows hard to get anywhere in the heavyweight class. Gene himself hasn't a particularly deadly wallop, of course, but he hits much harder than Loughran, for all that.

Tunney is the first light heavyweight in 20 years to build himself up into a heavyweight champion of the world. His immediate predecessors, Dempsey, Willard and Johnson, who reigned over a span of two decades, all were big men to start with.

It once was traditional that the heavyweight championship should change hands only through a knockout or a foul. Tunney proved at Philadelphia that it could be done by a decision.

Theoretically, if Gene could get the title from Dempsey by outboxing him, Loughran might some day win it from Gene in the same manner.

So Tommy's ambition is by no means ludicrous.

Boxing fans are beginning to wish that our leading champions would do a little knocking out, or at least knocking down, of their opponents. Apparently, the trend of the profession is away from brute strength and toward science.

There have been some spectacular knock-downs in championship bouts lately, but in every case it was the champion who dusted the canvas with the seat of his thighs before getting up to fight on and win.

Loughran and Tunney both have experienced the unpleasant sensation of being knocked heels over head in a title bout.

Gene's trip to the canvas in the seventh round at Chicago remains a ring classic.

The other night Leo Lomski knocked Tommy Loughran down twice in the first round, only to lose the decision.

The reactions of the champions differed. "I knew what I was doing, and was watching the timekeeper and listening to the count," said Tunney, whose chief worry afterwards was over the "goofy" expression on his face as shown by the motion pictures.

"My head didn't clear until the fifth round," said Tommy. "I must have kept on fighting by instinct, because when I came to in the fifth, I thought we still were fighting in the first. I couldn't believe my seconds when they said the bout was one-third over, and that I'd better get busy if I wanted to win."

Tod Morgan, junior lightweight champion, was knocked down several times by Joe Glick in their recent fight, but was holding his own and might have won the decision if Glick had not fouled him in the fourteenth round.

LOCALS DISPLAY FLASHY OFFENSE LAST EVENING

GAME CLOSE THROUGHOUT AND FILLED WITH ACTION FROM START TO FINISH

NOMADS, ALTHOUGH UNUSED TO FLOOR, LED 17 TO 12 AT THE HALF PERIOD

Displaying a flashy offense and a good defense, the Y. M. C. A. basketball team scored a 30 to 23 victory over the Minneapolis Nomads last night at the local high school gymnasium. The game was close all through and filled with action from start to finish.

The Nomads showed up well in spite of the fact that they were unused to the small floor. They showed versatility and deadly accuracy in basket shooting which boded ill for the locals, especially in the first half, which ended with the score 17 to 12 in the visitors' favor.

The Y., however, with four fresh substitutes came back strong in the second half and rapidly drew near their opponents and passed them. There were no particular stars on the Y team, each man doing his best to win. For the Nomads, Bersley, formerly of Brainerd and Hubert, played a good offensive game and rolled up 14 points.

The Comets won the preliminary from the Northeast All-Stars by a score of 17 to 14. It was the best preliminary played here this season, according to old timers in attendance.

The line-ups:
Y. M. C. A.—Nutting, Lawrenz, Anderson, right forwards; Beck and Hess, left forwards; Zakariassen and Fitzharris, centers; Fitzsimmons and Orth, left guards; Welsh, right guard.

Field goals—Nutting 2, Beck 3, Hess 2, Fitzharris 2, Welsh 4, Bersley 7, Laugmae 2, Verket 1.

Free throws made—Nutting, 2 out of 6; Hess, 1 out of 2; Orth, 1 out of 1; Laugmae, 2 out of 6; Rogers, 1 out of 3.

Scorer—Whitlock.

Referee—Kasch.

ENDRIZZI TO TRAIN FOR CONTINENT WIDE FOOTRACE

Harley, Wis., Jan. 17.—(U.P.)—"Billy" Endrizzi has gone to Hot Springs, Ark., to train for C. C. Pyle's San Francisco-New York footrace, scheduled for March. Endrizzi announced before leaving that he had sent in his entry fee and would be on the starting line as a representative of the Harley Legion post if he could get into condition in time.

RICKARD TO CONFER WITH GENE TUNNEY

New York, Jan. 17.—(U.P.)—Tex Rickard leaves tomorrow for Miami, Fla., to confer with Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion, on fight plans for 1928.

Tunney stated recently in New York he expected to fight twice during the year—in June and probably again in September—but recent developments in the heavyweight ranks have caused Rickard to scout the idea of two fights.

Rickard was unable to make definite announcements. He expressed himself as favoring one championship bout and that in September.
